Rugged Elegance: A Pair of Large Slate Planters

Elevate your outdoor living space with this exceptional pair of planters, crafted from the finest natural Welsh slate sourced directly from the renowned Cwt-y-Bugail slate mine in the foothills of Snowdonia National Park.

The Cwt-y-Bugail quarry has long been recognised as one of the premier sources of high-quality Welsh slate, prized for its distinctive character and unparalleled durability. Nestled within the breath-taking landscapes of Snowdonia, this historic site has been providing exceptional building materials for centuries, making it the ideal source for these beautiful garden planters.

Each planter in this set features a riven surface, a result of the natural cleavage planes within the slate. This unique texture creates a rugged, tactile quality that beautifully complements the minimalist design, evoking a sense of wabi-sabi – the Japanese aesthetic that celebrates the beauty in imperfection. The natural variations and subtle gradations of colour within the slate add to the charm and individuality of each piece.

Planter 1 measures 165cmm (65”) in length, 50cm (20”) in depth, and 24cm (9.5”) in height.

The holes in this planter measure:

31cms (12”) diameter

20-23cms (8-9”) height

The second planter measures 152cmm (60”) in length, 58cm (23”) in depth, and 20cm (8”) in height.

The holes in this planter measure:

31cms (12”) diameter

15-18cms (6-7”) height

The slate used in these planters is renowned for its resistance to weathering, fading, and deterioration, ensuring that they will continue to grace your space for generations to come. With minimal maintenance required, these planters showcase the enduring appeal of this exceptional natural material, a true masterpiece of sustainable, high-quality design.
