SKU: GD1698

£1,895.00

An exquisite matched pair of tub chairs by fine furniture maker Arthur Brett, handcrafted to the highest standards of British furniture making. Believed to have been commissioned in the 1980s, these chairs come from a large collection assembled by an owner with a long-standing passion for Arthur Brett's work. Each chair features a solid cherry wood frame with a deep, rich tone that beautifully contrasts the original royal-blue cord upholstery, which retains excellent pile and is in remarkable condition.

The sculpted tub silhouette provides an elegant country-house aesthetic while retaining clean proportions that suit contemporary interiors. The seats offer a sturdy footing and a comfortable, high seating position with excellent back support — the tub form gently hugs the sitter. The pair is well preserved and in excellent structural order, showing only minor age-appropriate surface wear to the timber consistent with gentle use.

As a matched pair they are highly versatile: use them together as a focal seating arrangement, place them among other seating, or employ them as occasional chairs in a window nook, study, or flanking a doorway. Their combination of superb craftsmanship, quality materials, and enduring aesthetic makes them equally at home in a traditional English interior or a modern

New York apartment.
