

LARGE RECLAIMED ANTIQUE COPPER PLANTER WITH NATURAL PATINA

SKU: GD1664

£425.00

A large reclaimed antique copper planter with a beautifully weathered surface and strong decorative presence. Circular in form and originally used as a wash tank, it has developed a rich patina with warm copper tones and areas of verdigris that give the piece depth and softness.

The planter retains a visible historic patch repair and embossed gallon markings to the interior, both of which add to its character. It is not watertight, so if used indoors it should be paired with a secondary plant saucer or liner.

Designer highlights

- Large circular form with strong sculptural presence, lightweight yet sturdy with a folded top lip
 - Reclaimed antique copper with naturally developed patina
 - Originally a wash tank, with embossed gallon markings to the interior
 - Visible patch repair as part of its history
- Suitable for decorative use outdoors or indoors (with appropriate liner)

Finish & patina

The copper surface shows a natural mix of warm brown, russet and soft green verdigris. Marking, tonal variation and the visible repair are all consistent with age and use, and form part of the planter's naturally textured appeal.

Placement

A versatile decorative piece with enough presence to work in a range of interior or exterior settings.

Design compatibility

Its aged copper surface and simple circular form allow it to work equally well in traditional settings and more pared-back contemporary interiors, where antique patina can bring depth, warmth and contrast. It also sits naturally alongside timber, stone, brick and terracotta.

Conservation & condition

- Reclaimed antique piece with age-related wear
 - Historic patch repair visible; see photos
- Surface oxidation, marks and tonal variation throughout
- Not watertight; use a secondary saucer or liner indoors

Provenance & sustainability

Originally a wash tank, this planter has been reclaimed and repurposed for decorative use. Its reuse preserves the character of an antique utilitarian object while offering a more sustainable alternative to new production.

Care & maintenance

Wipe gently with a soft dry or slightly damp cloth. Avoid abrasive or chemical cleaners, which may affect the existing patina.
