A superb English garden piece, this stunning Reclaimed Carved Stone Garden Bench Seat is a perfect example of rustic charm and timeless elegance. This exquisite bench features a top made from Yorkstone, which has developed a characterful patina reminiscent of lime wash, giving it a unique aesthetic.

The stone top sits on two Portland limestone bolster plinth feet, making it a special piece and enhancing its timeless elegance.

The bench top showcases a natural hand-cut edge, creating a superb natural look that beautifully complements both outdoor and indoor settings. The design is both functional and artistic, making it an ideal addition to gardens, patios, orangeries, loggias, or as a feature piece in a hallway.

As a mid-19th century piece, circa 1860, it imbues a historical richness unmatched by modern-day creations.

Condition:

This garden bench is in excellent condition, with the natural wear and character of the stone only enhancing its beauty and charm. The rustic finish and unique markings tell a story of its past, making it a conversation piece in any garden.

Versatile and Timeless:

Ideal for creating a tranquil seating area in your garden or as a focal point in a country home, this Reclaimed Garden Bench embodies the quintessential English country house aesthetic. Its timeless design and robust construction ensure it will be a cherished piece for years to come.
